I am a Registered Nurse and a cancer patient. For over 30 years I have supported patients as they navigate the daunting healthcare experience. As a cancer patient I experienced first hand the stress and anxiety of finding myself seriously ill.

For more than 20 years I lived in the USA. It was encouraging to watch as some states in the USA manage to offer their citizens the right to chose without any of the 'scary' consequences that some people like to tout.

Anyone who witnesses a death usually comes to the only humane conclusion. That everyone should have the right to chose die with dignity on their own terms.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to be heard. I am so impressed that Victoria has had the courage to open up the discussion on this vital issue.
