I am an ex: R/N.

For 30 years I cared for my visually and hearing and somewhat perceptually disabled husband, following a cardiac arrest, where I performed CPR.

I also nursed my mother during that time, with terminal Ca. in my home. For both persons, I was holding their hand and hugging them as they died.

How fortunate were they, to have me!

I know the system. I do not wish to lay in a nursing home or hospital, in discomfort, and kept alive with 'pills and potions', when.....I am meant to die. This in no way is a reflection on the wonderful care and dedicated nursing staff of the many institutions.

I would like available, NEMBUTAL..

How secure and comforting, just to know it was there.

I may never use it.

I believe this availability, would probably extend one's life thorough happiness that one need never have to suffer. MY CHOICE. No one should legislate for another persons life.
