I feel strongly about people with dementia, terminal painful cancers, quality of life being non-existent - I hope if I am unable to attend to my bodily functions I could be hurried along off the planet. When animals are suffering we can call in a vet and have the animal put down - I feel we should be able to do the same to humans.

I had a very dear friend who had motor neuron disease and she took herself to Switzerland to end her life. She would have much preferred to have died here in Australia with friends and family around but our laws do not allow this. Hopefully things will change - there should be no reason why people have to suffer.
