Regional home supply inquiry underway

A Parliament of Victoria inquiry into the supply of homes in regional Victoria is seeking submissions from the public.

The Legislative Assembly Environment and Planning Committee is looking at the methods of building homes and the mix of housing forms and types.

“The Committee wants to further develop our understanding of the issues of housing supply in regional communities across Victoria,” Committee Chair Juliana Addison said.

“The inquiry provides a significant opportunity for us to look closely at a range of housing issues including areas in most need of housing, workforce challenges in the construction industry and accommodation for regional workers in key sectors.”

Stakeholders and individuals are encouraged to make a public submission online by the closing date of 31 March 2025.

The Committee will travel throughout regional Victoria to conduct site visits and hold public hearings as part of its inquiry.

“We’re really looking forward to being in regional communities across Victoria to meet with representatives involved in the housing sector,” Ms Addison said.

“These visits will allow the Committee Members to engage with industry experts, support organisations and government authorities, and hear firsthand from those on the ground about their experiences.”

A report to parliament is due by 15 December 2025.
