Dear members of Parliamentary Inquiry into unconventional gas in Victoria,
I have been a GP in Australia for over 30 years and have researched the effects of coal seam gas on human health, waterways and agriculture. The potential damage to all the above through environmental impacts is well known through the experience of this industry overseas.
It is unconscionable to allow this to take place in the most productive farming and fishing region of Victoria, South Gippsland.
The adverse effect on tourism and real estate values is a major concern and there will be robust and indefatigable community resistance to any attempt to allow CSG to take place.
Yours sincerely,
Barbara Hoare MBBS
