I oppose the development of On Shore Gas exploration in Victoria and believe that those government officers who allow it to proceed will be guilty of geological vandalism of the highest order. We as citizens and the elected members of the government are the custodians of our lands. These lands do not exist to give profit to a few citizens who live now, they should give support and sustenance to all future generations. With progress of gas and mining exploration and extraction we risk destruction and contamination of our aquifers and great disturbance to the earth surface through hole drilling, rock fracturing and construction of infrastructure with associated vegetation clearance. There is clear evidence of the disastrous side effects of the current OSG process in Australia and overseas, the details of which others will have detailed. It is irresponsible to allow this industry here in Victoria when there is even the smallest chance it will jeopardise the success of other industries and impact on the health of populations and environment. Please listen to the people who oppose it on so many grounds, agriculture, health, water, environmental, property values, rather than mining and industrial developers who only see profit and temporary employment opportunities.
