I am an older person but have been very concerned over the last few years with the thought of CSG mining, (now called unconventional gas) in Victoria, especially in South Gippsland. This is an area produces food with a clean, green label which would be badly compromised by the fracking process, to say nothing of the need for vast supplies of water and the problem of disposal dangerous waste chemicals. Our dairy products are being required more and more by overseas markets and tourism is a major money earner.

The problems of this mining are becoming clear, so for the sake of our families I would urge that the mining is not allowed proceed.

Thank you
