Gas extraction and exploration in South West Victoria is flawed. The initial set up process brings money in the community for two years only as it did in Queensland and after that the area was in a worse position than before as they had restructured their economy on the influx on people that arrived to work only on the infrastructure.

In this area we have tourism so it is not necessary. We rely on wind and solar power for our energy needs. The water table feeds many households and cannot be spared for gas. There will be a huge fight against csg in the future if the project will be given the go ahead in the future. This will cost the csg industry alot of money fighting in court. It is easy for us to raise this money as we have most of the community on our side against csg. So please let us concentrate on our trajectory of sustainable tourism and energy and go somewhere else. I am sure you will find many low brow hicks willing to sell their land and livelihoods to this limited and ill advised energy source.

Yours,

Mara Luglio
