As a registered nurse I am very concerned about Fracking and unconventional gas mining. The Hazelwood mine fire showed that regulatory systems can fail, putting peoples lives and health at risk. While I see that mining adds to jobs I do not wish there to be more nursing jobs due to the health consequences when things go wrong.

I am also very concerned about food security in Australia when using prime agricultural land for mining. Australians will always need food but we may regret our heavy use of energy in years to come.

The health and environmental effects of these mines will be with us for generations if not permanently. To protect Victoria a permanent ban on all unconventional gas.
