Frack gas mining has been in the news often regarding the pollution it creates in water underground and the damage it has done in USA and other parts of the world. Gasses are released that are toxic and have affected the health of people living nearby. Some companies have been convicted of polluting with dangerous toxins, the water supplies in Australia yet The Government sees fit to give them a licence to continue their work..! This method of mining is dangerous and must not be introduced to Victoria or any other state in Australia. There has been considerable trouble in other states with this mining method, causing political objections. I STRONGLY suggest you do not allow Frack Gas Mining in Victoria. Best wishes....JOHN MILLANE
