Fracking is fraught with concerns - don't deny it. Here in Australia (Queensland and NSW) and in USA, it has been shown not to be safe (contamination of aquifers) and it is unsightly (drills, traffic, contaminated water reservoirs) in an otherwise tourist area. There are other forms of energy, called renewable, that should be focused on in this day and age. The owners of coal companies do not need to get richer - support the renewable energy businesses to provide a level playing field! It would have lots of good employment!
