I do not believe Gas can be extracted without damage to the land and water resources. This is not the time to start more of these dirty industries, when the rest of the world is turning to renewable energy. We have plenty of sunshine and wind and these industries are becoming much more reliable with better batteries and photovoltaic cells being manufactured. If we do not look to the future and encourage these industries we will be left behind and become the laughing stock of the world instead of leading the world.
