Animal activists have a negative impact on agriculture around the world. They portray all animal farming as cruel even though the Australian standard practices are world renowned. Australian producers follow these guidelines to ensure that they have the highest welfare standards in place.

Animal activists trespass to try and prove their narrative by taking illegal footage and then adding dramatic music to their productions to try and influence the public's perception of animal agriculture labelling everything as abuse.

They do not take it consideration their impact on bio security when they enter farms and have spread diseases this way. They also do not consider the welfare of the animals. They steal and kill animals while they are trespassing and then claim the farmers are mistreating the animals.

Activism where they disrupt or illegally enter facilities should face harsher penalties with a standard jail term.
