The public is well within their rights to have an opinion on what is happening to their food and what goes on behind closed doors. We have always been a free country and silencing these people is completely unfair and takes away their rights to protest something they disagree with. Some of their supporters are quite strong and over the top but the majority are just trying to ensure what they believe will be a better future for the country.

Vegetable and fruit farming is farming too and there are planet of other things these families can farm when the future inevitably becomes less aimed towards meat consumption and more towards other sources of nutrition that are better for the planet.
