

From: Peter Mullan [REDACTED]
Sent: Saturday, 1 June 2019 8:10 AM
To: eic council
Subject: Animal activists enquiry

I wish to give you my opinion on the animal activists

Farmers should have the right to farm without fear of invasions to their property and the potential risks that these unwanted visitors bring. The bio security risk from bringing in material or disease that could compromise their entire operation is huge, particularly for pork producers. Farmers run legitimate businesses and should not need to worry about animals being stolen or disturbed, which effects their welfare . In the event that animals are taken, people who do not follow the correct traceability process should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, for not having PICS or completing property transfer responsibilities. I feel that laws need to be strengthened to provide much harsher penalties to give farmers more security and peace of mind

Peter Mullan

Sent from my iPhone