I believe it is essential that people have access and information as to how their food is grown , sourced, produced and the impact it has on water , soil , the environment and animal welfare. To be able to make an informed decision as to what to eat and feed our families is critical and farmers are an integral component of this information. Animal activists are only interested in ensuring the welfare of animals is upheld, something that most Australians care deeply about. Transparency is critical, please do not shutdown visibility otherwise we can only presume there is something to hide. Thank you
