Subject: Animal activists

Dear sir/madam,

We are dairy farmers in south Gippsland and love our job believing it to be a great livelihood and hope it will be for future generations too.

We face many challenges and think it's totally unacceptable that animal activists are allowed to come onto our farms, hence our homes as well, and interfere, harass and place extreme stress on our family, our animals, our finances, staff and extended families. It was an extreme insult when the activists were brought to court and fined $1. What message does that send to our farming families, are we that under valued? Truly if we had one wish for farming families it would be that society would value us and what we do. We rest our case in your hands.

Sincerely disappointed,

Kaye & Graham Laing
