I am motivated to make a short submission by the recent exposure of extreme cruelty to chickens st a Victorian poultry farm. I also witnessed today newly shorn sheep in the cold rain without shelter. I hear the distress calls from cattle st the local abattoir.

Community attitudes to animal welfare are changing. Animals are recognised as sentient beings who feel pain and fear.

Victoria needs laws to protect and ensure the welfare if all farm animals.

Every slaughterhouse should have cameras.

The government should appoint animal welfare officers who actually have the poeer to prosecute.

Animal activists are showing the public what happens to animals and the public has the right to know.

Thank you
