Andy Meddick is right. If it wasn't for whistleblowers the public would have no idea what goes on inside abattoirs.

These people are heroes who have decided that the cruelty they have witnessed is reprehensible and can no longer be tolerated. People who abuse animals are psychopaths and should be kept away from animals, permanently. No-one has the right to abuse any animal, anywhere.

If the government insists on implementing ag. gag laws then that is only making the problem worse because people who care about animals are only going to ask why are such laws needed. What is there to hide?

There is no humane way to kill an animal so animal ag. farming has to go.

Veganism is nothing new but until recently it was virtually unheard of. These days it is a booming market because the public can no longer accept the outright abuse associated with animal ag.

As far as I am concerned I stopped eating meat & drinking cow's milk because of the cruelty involved in its production. This was cruelty captured on video by brave whistleblowers who could not remain silent and allow this abhorrent behaviour to continue.
