Hi, the expansion of the free tram zone is a really cheerful and important idea not only to university student and staff member but also to the tourists visiting Melbourne.

The University of Melbourne stop is only few stops away from the free train zone ended at Melbourne Central. Expanding the free tram zone could drain more tourists to explore Unimelb, Lygon Street, and Carlton Garden, etc. They could bring real financial benefits to the suburb.

Further, many international and domestic students live in Carlton and surrounding suburbs. With the escalation of tuition fee every year, it is time to bring something beneficial and helpful to these students who loyally support the development of Australia education industry, and create a more enjoyable living environment for them.
