I support the extension of the free tram zone to Swanston Street, immediately outside the university. Although students have subsidized Myki travel, many manage on subsistence budgets and since most of them reach the university via connections in the CBD, or live in the CBD, the extension would be a significant help to many. Extension of the free tram zone would also help the significant number of RMIT students who live in residential colleges (such as University College) on the perimeter of The University of Melbourne.
