I agree with the suggested expansion of the tram network. It will surely make it easier for tourists who don't have to purchase a myki with a confusing system.

To reduce the congestion in the city, it would be great to have extra services and/or longer trams. Consider having destination times and walk times to major stops at the tram stops in addition to arrival times so people who are only taking the tram for a couple of stops may consider walking instead if the destination time is longer than the walk time. Or if new technology can be implemented to charge a fee for travelling for two or less stops, to discourage very short trips which can be walked instead

I agree to offer free or reduced cost transport to full time students.

I agree to offer a further reduced cost for pensioners but not free. If free, this may encourage pensioners to use public transport just for the sake of it, rather than use it for a purpose.
