I commute daily to work by way of a 44km ride each way, morning and afternoon, 5 days a week.

I have had cars cut me off, turn left suddenly without indicating and even purposely move further to the left of the road as I approach leaving me no room. As well as trucks pass me so closely that I am forced into the gutter.

I have been forced to purchase front and rear cameras at a considerable expense to document any future incidents. As it seems that the cyclist is treated with suspicion automatically and the driver of the car or truck is treated as the righteous road user with superior road rights.

This has to stop.
