Improving road safety for cyclists through changes to the law is essential. My friends and I ride regularly and safely but we do not feel safe on the roads. Unfortunately three people I know have been killed in the last three years in accidents with cars and in all cases the car driver was culpable. Introducing a metre matters style legislation will hopefully make motorists think when sharing the roads with cyclists and it only needs to help avoid one more fatality and it would clearly have been worthwhile. Other state Governments have led the way and reactions are positive. Please follow their lead Victoria Government.

Regards
Darren Taylor
