I work at a public hospital, and support research into prevention for and treatment of specific conditions. However, I am very aware that historically, the greatest progress in community health has been due to improvements such as better sanitation. Concern for the general health environment is vital and must not be ignored. It is shocking that air pollution kills hundreds of Victorians every year, yet this is not reflected in news media headlines. The Victoria Government is duty-bound to adopt the recommendations of the People's Clean Air Action Plan for Victoria.
