Water and Air, the two mainstays of a successful society. I live in Moe, the 2014 coal mine fire reduced my lung capacity, not measured so perhaps it was a mental scar that remains to this day. The debate rages on regarding industries that provides jobs but must balance pollution to get community support. Fuel reduction burning clears the forest of pesky timber but kills wildlife, and smokes out communities many kilometres down wind. This is not the way we should treat people who have no alternative but breath contaminated air. Clean Air must come before fuel reduction burns. Tourism in regional areas puts more pressure on agencies to provide safe holiday experiences, but where to start? Education regarding campfires, recently at The Quarry camground Briagolong, a family had campfire raging despite recored evening tempratures! Holiday makers will spend dollars in regional areas who in years to come will welcome new money as timber harvesting is phased out, we need to make them welcome and provide safe and desirable bush experiences. Poor air quality does not make for a pleasant holiday, educate, enforce, and cease burning the bush for a percentage target!
