Hello,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit. I recently bought an EV as I have always cared about emissions and climate change. All of my garden appliances have been battery power for many years. To hear that after paying luxury car tax as an early adopter of an EV that due to the price range of the car I now find that the state government is looking at taxing EV's further. I recently sat on the Infrastructure Victoria community panel on transport due to Victoria not currently being able to meet its emissions targets going forward. Of the many recommendations to government a tax on EV's was not included. I believe that this report should now have been tabled in parliament and I implore politicians to seriously consider the recommendations the 250 strong community panel came up with. Electric cars are coming, we can treat them like their petrol a HD diesel equivalents from a tax point of view, or stop, think and refresh the approach on transport revenue and expenditure in a new innovative way. Please do not slow the uptake of this technology by making it more expensive for Victorians to get into an EV.

Thank you,
