Thank you for considering my submission. In 2019 and early 2020 Victoria suffered Bush fires not seen before in character and ferocity. Aside from their harsh impact on communities the fires severely impacted on native wildlife. Native mammals such as wombats, wallabies and kangaroos were impacted by the fires as well as their habitat. Since the fires there has been continued land clearing causing further damage to the eco system and forcing animals from their territories.

I have great concern that our elected representatives do not follow the science and the experts in land regeneration and regrowth. Logging and clearing should not be allowed in such precious areas where eco systems are changed and species are lost from the area.

The eco system is delicately balanced and nature has its own course to modify and adapt to damage.

Please, please, please take note of the experts and the science and the aboriginal custodians who cared for this land for thousands of years before and after Bush fires.
