An email response sent to me by DELWP was highly disappointing. In preference to relocate animals, they claim that the recommendation is for local culling. Their reason is that relocation often has a low success rate. Unacceptable. People are being forced out of their homes due to the trauma that that they are experiencing due to witnessing these innocent animals being murdered. These same people chose to buy in these areas to be immersed in nature. How is it possible in our supposed civilised society that we have not found a way to coexist, in peace, with our fauna? How dare we think that we are so entitled to destroy what nature has created in the search for more money. This is immoral.

There has to be a better way and an it is my hope that writing this submission will make someone listen.
