Please accept my submission. Sonja Terpstra.

The remnant vegetation in Gippsland vic. is by far are Eucalypts. They should never be near houses because they are always dropping limbs.

Where remnant eucalypts are should be under planted by a variety of shrubs giving dignity to these wonderful giants, that house and feed so many local inhabitants.

Just to give you a background.

Warragul Trees has been documenting since 2019 roadsides in urban and country.

Sundays 9am to 12 but we do overtime as interest is found, like we have discovered an unknown native Grevillea of which our group has all taken seed. So far we have only managed to successfully propagate 2. We will work with the herbarium to continue to have plant identified.

Also while listing trees I have found the largest area known by any person that has seen, native orchids of 2 species, which I am preparing to list with the state gov. why and how they are there is so far unknown.

Thanking you for my chance to make this submission. June Dineen. Warragul
