HEALTH:

It's easy to get, available everywhere. Any resident or tourist may find a way to buy in hours. The dangerous thing here is that regulating safe consumable cannabis is not an option. Anyone may sell anything and there's no way to control the specifications and quality of what young people buy. They can't even report and complain.

Economically:

This should be taxed and contributing to the job force if the specs are controlled by the government and the law.

Again, it's super easy now through the internet to buy weed. Many people want it in a good way. It would be great if the law is flexible and adapting to the society's current situation.
