YOUR SUBMISSION

Submission:

Cannabis can be quite a safe drug. It has numerous medical benefits and the sale of it in stores (as seen in other countries) can lead to a big increase of tax revenue and a greater quality control systems in place than what the guy around the corner can offer. At the end of the day a drug dealer can mess around with anything they choose to sell and having it regulated and easy to access would have many people going to a store. A legalised store would have cannabis that is grown properly and much less of a hassle and you know exactly what your going to get. It's a plant that can land you in jail and that's not right. Nobody has ever had a fatal dose of cannabis and if someone smokes too much they are much easier to handle, talk to or deal with than someone who has consumed to much (legal) alcohol.
