Do you have any additional comments or suggestions?:

I personally believe that controlled supply is better for the user so they aren't exposed to stronger drugs, not wasting precious police resources on minor drug incidents, and for the economy, taxing cannabis would be great. People who want to take cannabis will access it whether it is legal or not. Also more use in medical settings as a treatment for pain management, epilepsy and others is (I believe) much more preferable to strong medications with significant side effects and exorbitant prices.
