I am a resident living in a retirement village and I am concerned with the workmanship on entry to my unit. The standard of workmanship on the paint and carpets means that it is difficult to clean and I worry about the cost on exit and whether I will be made to make good things that were not right in the beginning.

The problem with the retirement industry is there is no one identity that residents, who are normally on limited financial means, can address these blatant and discriminating tactics to without engaging expensive lawyers.

With a projected aging community there is an urgent need to have a Commissioner or preferably an Ombudsman to adjudicate on these and other industry matters.
