Inquiry into Sexting

Australian Government Attorney-General’s Department submission

May 2012
Introduction

The Attorney-General’s Department welcomes the opportunity to provide the Parliament of Victoria Law Reform Committee with this submission as part of the Committee’s inquiry into ‘sexting,’ defined in the Terms of Reference as ‘the creating, sharing, sending or posting of sexually explicit messages or images via the internet, mobile phones or other electronic devices by people, especially young people.’

2. The Department’s submission is directed at paragraph three of the Committee’s Terms of Reference, which refers to the Committee’s intention to consider —

3. the appropriateness and adequacy of existing laws, especially criminal offences and the application of the sex offenders register, that may apply to the practice of sexting, particularly with regard to the creation, possession and transmission of sexually suggestive or explicit messages or images in circumstances where a person:

   a. creates, or consents to the creation of, the message or image for his or her own private use and/or the use of one or more other specific persons; or

   b. creates, or consents to the creation of, the message or image and without their knowledge and/or their consent the image is disseminated more broadly than the person intended.

3. As the Committee has identified, the issues outlined in this paragraph raise issues of national concern, which may fall under Commonwealth, State or Territory jurisdiction. While States and Territories are primarily responsible for child sex-related offences occurring domestically within each jurisdiction, the Commonwealth has enacted offences in areas relating to child sex tourism, online child pornography and online child grooming laws. These offences fall within Commonwealth responsibility under the Constitution because they contain international or online elements.

Commonwealth legislative reform

4. Commonwealth child sex-related offences are contained in the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth). In March 2010, the Commonwealth Parliament passed the Crimes Legislation Amendment (Sexual Offences Against Children Act 2010 (the Sexual Offences Against Children Act). The reforms strengthened existing measures to combat child sexual exploitation, including by:

   • enhancing existing offence regimes for child sex tourism and online child pornography, including by increasing existing penalties

   • introducing new offences for using a carriage service for indecent communications or sexual activity with a child

   • introducing a scheme for the forfeiture of online child pornography and child abuse material

   • introducing a new suite of child sex-related postal service offences, and

   • introducing new offences of dealing in child pornography and child abuse material overseas.

5. The measures were designed to ensure that child sex-related offences in areas of Commonwealth responsibility remain comprehensive and able to deal with contemporary forms of offending. Accordingly, the amendments took into account a range of factors including the need to remain responsive to emerging trends in the use of technology to sexually exploit children, law enforcement agencies’ operational experience with existing offences and best practice domestically and internationally in legislating to combat child sexual exploitation. The reforms were also informed by submissions to a consultation paper, which was released to the public and sent to relevant State and Territory agencies and non-government organisations in October 2009.
Overview of Commonwealth online child pornography offences

6. Commonwealth legislation does not directly criminalise sexting. However, the practice may be captured by offences contained in Subdivision D of Division 474 of the Criminal Code which criminalise a range of conduct relating to the use of a ‘carriage service’ such as the internet or mobile telephone, for child pornography.

7. These offences apply if a person ‘uses’ a carriage service for child pornography material (i.e., accesses, solicits or transmits such material or causes such material to be transmitted to himself or herself), or possesses, controls, produces, supplies or obtains child pornography for use through a carriage service. The relevant provisions are included at Attachment A. The Sexual Offences Against Children Act increased the maximum penalty for these offences from 10 to 15 years imprisonment.

8. For the purposes of the Criminal Code, child pornography involves material that depicts a person under 18 engaged in a sexual pose or sexual activity or that have as their dominant characteristic the depiction for a sexual purpose of a sexual organ of a person under 18, and which reasonable persons would regard as being, in all the circumstances, offensive.

Application to sexting

9. As indicated above, the offences in Subdivision D of Division 474 are designed to combat a broad range of serious sexual offences against children committed via a carriage service, and are not designed to target young people engaged in sexting and similar behaviours. However, persons under 18 years of age are not excluded from the operation of the provisions. As explained in the Explanatory Memorandum to the Sexual Offences Against Children Act, such an exclusion would potentially reduce protections for children and young people against online child pornography offences in circumstances where the incident involved malicious or exploitative behaviour.

10. However, the offences are subject to a range of protections to ensure that behaviour such as sexting that is not exploitative of, or harmful to, children is not inappropriately captured by the Criminal Code. There is scope for law enforcement to take the circumstances of the particular case into account before proceeding to investigate or prosecute such offences. Similarly, the Prosecution Policy of the Commonwealth requires the Commonwealth Director of Public Prosecutions to consider whether the prosecution of a young person is, in all the circumstances, in the public interest, before proceeding with the case.

11. As an additional safeguard, under section 474.24C of the Code, the consent of the Attorney-General is required prior to the commencement of proceedings for an offence against Subdivision D of Part 10.6 of the Code (which includes Commonwealth online child pornography offences) if the person was under 18 years of age at the time he or she allegedly engaged in the conduct constituting the offence.
