RE: INQUIRY INTO DRUG LAW REFORM

Request

The world of drugs is one I know nothing about.

All I know is that it is now a problem obscured by hypocrisy and forced underground as a result of policies which criminalise at every point.

I also think that the failure of drug regulation policies over the last 50 years demonstrates that the only way that the social damage resulting from all drugs can be contained is by prioritising public health above punishment.

If this attitude is adopted the adoption of suitable regimes, such a drug testing, becomes an obvious first step in this area in order to minimise health risks..
