

Christianne Andonovski

---

From: Marina Stehle [REDACTED]
Sent: Wednesday, 1 February 2017 4:59 PM
To: LRRCS
Subject: Ideas box from general public, submission idea for Drug Law Reform

Hello Honourable Members of Parliamentary debate,

I was hoping for you to discuss the possibility of reintroducing capital punishment in general, as a deterrent. Observing that with forensic science advancements, etc, which eliminates much of the doubts that formerly existed, and that in United Arab Emirates they have Capital Punishment, with the results of high respect for laws, and extremely low crime rates! Basically it works as a strong deterrent.

In any case with doubt or perhaps a minor first offender, they would have time in goal to rehabilitate, basically be given one chance, in any serious or repeat offender cases though capital punishment should be the penalty.

I think those currently in prison should all be retrospectively judged for their actions also, to clean out the overcrowded prisons of the bad ones, the good ones will be rehabilitated if assessed as salvageable.

Taking into account all the good but homeless people of Australia, who do the right thing, without the luxury of shelter and 3 meals a day like the criminals in goal, I think the empty prison cells should be converted into homeless accommodation and food shelters for the good and deserving homeless who do the right thing!

We all have a choice between right and wrong, the system should not reward criminals who do the wrong thing, but the good who are suffering moreso for doing the right thing.

Bring back justice in the truest sense. I think people would vote to implement this, as I asked some people randomly in the community, and they said it was a good idea. Perhaps a referendum would fast track it and you could all fine tune the humane process of implementing such a change with the government, judicial systems, police, medical professionals and forensic scientists at a round table brain storming session to figure out best solution. This is just the catalyst starting point for you to begin your discussions.

I hope this idea has been of assistance, as currently justice system is in crisis because of being toooo lenient, and the criminals are playing the system, with termination as the verdict, respect for law and order etc would be restored.

Judgement day is here, or we are ALL doomed!

Very best wishes for restoration of Peace in Australia, your friendly ideas person,

Marina Stehle
[REDACTED]

P.S. Could you please not publish my phone number publicly, am happy for my name and postal address to be public in association with my idea for your discussions. Otherwise I will be potentially spammed. Have a very productive discussion, and I hope I have been of assistance. I saw your request for ideas on Facebook, and if you need any more ideas, I am happy to assist.