Country roads have become wildlife corridors and fire hazards during the 2009 fire burning trees blocked the Marronbah highway they now have been let grow back. Eighteen million dollars has been spent on the G.J highway on barriers while 61 dangerous trees remain a fallen branch can block this road.

Conservation overrides safety one sign reads beware of low branches, fallen and falling trees are an increasing danger to motorists. I fear this planning will continue until a horror crash what if Black Saturday was a school day. After 11 lives were lost at a Herang road crossing we got humble strips. Highways have safety lanes so some roads drivers can’t get off yet we are expected to check injured wildlife.
