We consider that pro choice is very important for our society. Whilst we know that most people will not avail themselves of voluntary euthanasia, it would be a churlish person that would not accept that many people want the option available. There are limited options available now to end one’s life. Some are poison, hanging, starving to death, drowning etc.. It is reasonable that a more humane method should be available, ie under the supervision of doctor. Remember that it was a great success in NT, and is available in many countries and USA states.

Anne and Ray Lanham