As a type 1 diabetic who may end up with hideous issues towards the end of my life, I support the Australian Sex Party’s policy on voluntary euthanasia.

I believe that people with a terminal illness, or a quality of life that is so poor that it's not worth living, should be provided the right to choose when they die and how.

We are able to choose when to end our pets' lives and it's widely accepted and considered a kind act. Why shouldn't we be allowed to end our own when we're faced with similar suffering??

Needless suffering is inhumane and immoral and unnecessary given the success of voluntary euthanasia models across the world.
