

At current rates, by 2028 approximately 1,000 young Aboriginal people under 18 will be involved with the youth justice system during the year

Youth (Justice): Projected demand (individuals) by DHHS region (2020-2028F)

Assumption and notes:

- Population growth projection - Scenario 2 (complex) and assumes no additional growth (in addition to population growth)
- The projection uses data of Aboriginal young people in detention, in receipt of community order and in a Koori Youth Justice program in each Department of Justice area, using statistical analysis recommended by Taylor Fry to disaggregate into DHHS areas (using population statistics and SEIFA). As this data is only for 6 months, it has been adjusted to estimate a full year (multiplied by 1.5 assuming that half of the young people will remain in the service for longer than 6 months)