Submission:

The lockdown has had a severe impact on graduates the government needs to do more not just to support businesses but more crucially to support young people and all the graduates who have been put out of work this year, some sort of scheme should be introduced to encourage businesses to take on more graduates who have just graduated from their undergrad degrees.

The lockdown has also been completely bungled laws need to be introduced banning the state government from using private security contractors in the event of national emergencies such as pandemics or natural disasters. Family incomes are being destroyed and employment is being put at risk due to the extended lockdown caused by the disastrous handling of the initial outbreak. Registration fees and all forms of state revenue collection should also temporarily be lowered for 1/2 years to allow for economic recovery to happen.
