Hi Rsc,

The attached WRB report is part of the submission by Damien Codognotto... but new costing research (attached) has recently come to my attention which supports statements in the report:

That WRB is the most expensive of the barrier types when maintenance is considered.

That maintenance (whole of life costs) is usually not considered by engineers when costing items such barriers.

This material should be considered an addendum to that which you will receive.

PS. I also have electronic versions of many of the documents Damien will be presenting and offer to provide these to the committee.
