Subject: Att: Ms Lizzie Blandthorn MP as Chair of the Committee - "No Jab No Pay, No Jab No Play" Legislation

Please keep name and address confidential.

Dear Ms Blandthorn,

I am writing to you over the lack of concern our politicians and Government seems to have in regards to the health of Australian citizens and their right to freedom of choice and human right to have say in regards to medical decisions made about their own bodies. To question decisions, ethics and voice their opinions and concerns.

Mostly recently the new legislation "No Jab No Pay, No Jab No Play," – which will see the banning of unvaccinated children from pre-schools and removal of tax cuts for families that use childcare or Kinder unless they comply with new laws stating that they must be vaccinated on a schedule that the Government deems as fit.

There will be removal of the conscientious objection and religious forms, which are deemed at the moment necessary to show reason why they have not chosen vaccination. The only exemption will now be medical which is near impossible to get. You must have had a life threatening reaction or already be too sick to receive vaccination.

Australia is supposed to be a Democracy, we are suppose to have human rights, freedom of choice, freedom of speech and to live without totalitarian rule. Yet the Victorian Government, in particular, is about to enforce such a law upon us. How is this OK?

I must say that firstly I am neither for nor against vaccinations. I am pro-choice.

I see it as every humans' right to say what is and is not put inside their own bodies and not be forced into a position where they must comply with a medical procedure that they may not believe in or have serious health concerns about doing.

To coerce or force people into a position where they have no choice but to comply is a violation of their basic human rights. In this case - to medicine.

"It contravenes the medical code of conduct that requires 'informed consent without coercion' for all members of the Australian population."

These are ordinary parents who raise genuine concerns over the safety of vaccinations and the amount of vaccinations given now. They are normal everyday families who trying to make the best health decisions for their families.

And this is not just about their parents and the choices being made for their children, it is about the children themselves and how it affects them profoundly. To make them feel excluded, harassed, deemed outcasts because a health decision their parents have made for them on the basis of genuine concern over the safety of their children and the safety of vaccinations is a violation of their rights.

To ban a group of children who are healthy and have done nothing wrong from an experience that all children are entitled to at the beginning of their education is a violation of their rights.

And if this continues further to include schools which has been suggested, how is this then going to affect these children, mentally, socially, emotionally. To say they cannot attend a school because they have not complied with a medical procedure is a violation.

A removal of their freedom of choice.

Every person has right to education without coercion or discrimination. We are a first world country. We are a democracy. We do not threaten women for going to school. We do not exclude other races or religions so why it is then OK to excluded these children?

You are not and cannot discriminate against a child with AIDS or Hep B but you can discriminate against a healthy child who nothing wrong health wise with them.

The Government is saying but you do have a choice, you can choose not to vaccinate and therefore your children will be excluded and you will not be entitle to any benefits. That is not a fair or democratic choice. That is placing pressure on people to comply or suffer the consequences. There seems to be no issue admitting that there are casualties of vaccines and the damage they can do but no one is willing to do anything about it. And now we are being told we cannot even question it.

How are we suppose to keep these Pharmaceutical companies honest and provide us with safe vaccinations if we are not allowed to question them or voice our concerns about what they are putting into our bodies.

If the Government insists on pushing Australians into being vaccinated, why are we not allowed to question and insist on knowing about these products? Why does Australia not have a Commission in place to help vaccine-injured families like the rest of the Western world? Why is no one to be held accountable when it does go wrong? It is not even backing the very thing that they insist on forcing onto the population. Drug companies remain free of any guilt or misdoing of products that they create. The Government remains guilt free of ramifications it may have for children and Adults alike.

I have met so many adults and children, in everyday life, injured by them that it is hard to ignore. And there is nowhere they can turn, no one to help them deal with the situation they face. And now their right to demand that vaccines are made safer is being removed. Their voices are taking away from them.

These are all facts that politicians are aware of yet they ignore. Do any politicians even read the medical inserts that come with these vaccines to see the damage they are capable of doing to a child or adult?

It is a well-known fact that certain vaccines make people contagious when administered and that these people actually go on to infect others yet the small amount of unvaccinated children seem to get the blame. Why are recently vaccinated children not made to stay home for the exclusion period of 30 to 60 days after being administered a vaccine when they are shedding the disease? Maybe this would help to stop the spread of diseases like whooping cough rather than exclude health unvaccinated children who have done nothing wrong, carry no disease.

When will our Government take our health seriously and hold these drug companies accountable and insist on safer vaccinations for us rather than removing our basic human rights and forcing people into a medical procedure against their will, which leaving them no choice if they do not comply, is doing. Why is the Government allowing the corruption to continue?

The Government and its members need to stop listening to Pharmaceutical companies who are selling their products and have their hands deep inside pockets. The Government needs to start doing its own research away from any attached to these companies, look up the history of diseases and vaccines and see how advertising has changes mild diseases into deadly viruses all in order to sell a product. The Government needs to get out in the public and see what affect these vaccines are having on people. People are being hurt, damaged. Children are disabled, killed. Even one child dying from a product that is suppose to be safe – is one too many.

There are many many examples of Pharmaceutical drugs that have been released into the public that have done enormous damage, which have been exposed.

The schedule needs to be changed. It needs to be started later, and be spread out more and reduced. There are too too many vaccines and its not working. People need to have the freedom to demand a better system, a safer way and a choice!!

Australia needs to start paying attention to other countries, like Japan, Finland, Norway and other Europe Countries (Even Italy, Spain) who are way ahead of Australia in the vaccination game if they are concerned about vaccine rates.

These countries' Governments actually care about their citizens and take their health seriously. They take vaccine injury very seriously and act accordingly. There is a list of countries that have removed vaccines deemed to dangerous from their schedules. Several countries have begun lawsuits against the makers of HPV vaccine because of the devastating consequences it is having on girls all over the world. Even our ex Prime Minister Tony Abbot admitted to not allowing his daughters to receive this one but its being added to the schedule. It has been banned in so many places. Same with MMR, which has either been removed from schedules or split into three separate vaccines, not bunched together.

The Australian Government could stand to learn a lot from countries like Japan who have a completely different vaccination schedule to here and no where near the amount of injury or unwillingness. They have lower infant mortality rates, and higher infant and childhood health than we do. They do not use anywhere near the amount of vaccines, with several being elective, start vaccinations later in a child's life and their citizens are healthier. They do not need to force vaccination, as the citizens trust the Government to provide them with safe health care and they act accordingly when a vaccine is concerned dangerous. They must be doing something right! And now a new Adult Registry in plan. Vaccines are to be forced on Adults as well. What penalties lay in wait for those who do not keep up with this schedule that the Government deems they must?

These families pay taxes just like everyone else. They are entitled to keep them. When did having a choice over a medical procedure become deemed as to whether you can claim a return? It that not suppose to be based on financial situations?

Most of these families will not change their mind about their choice anyway as they deeply believe that vaccinations are dangerous to their health.

This is supposed to be a democratic country, not a dictatorship. We must be allowed to keep our basic human rights over our own bodies and when we be allowed to keep our freedom of choice and demand safer health care for our families.

Sincerely,
