HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.—Mr. Speaker reported that the House had that day attended His Excellency the Governor in the Legislative Council Chamber, when His Excellency was pleased to make a Speech to both Houses of Parliament, of which Mr. Speaker said he had, for greater accuracy, obtained a copy, as follows:—

MR. PRESIDENT AND HONOURABLE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY:

I have called you together this day to celebrate the Centenary of Government in Victoria.

One hundred years ago to-day the first meeting of the Legislative Council of Victoria was held in St. Patrick's Hall, Melbourne.

Victoria acknowledges, thankfully, the debt owed to those who have served with such devotion in this Parliament during the past century.

The achievements of our predecessors inspire us to emulate their work.

It is the earnest hope of my advisers that the next century of Parliament will be marked by wider development of the State, a fuller appreciation of the responsibilities of citizenship and a greater degree of co-operation and goodwill in the community.

My Ministers join with me in thanking the members of the Commemoration Committee and all other citizens associated with the many special events held throughout the State during this year.

The citizens of Victoria were looking forward with delight to the visit next year of Their Majesties the King and Queen and Her Royal Highness, Princess Margaret.

With feelings of profound regret they heard that His Majesty, on the advice of His Physicians, had reluctantly been constrained to abandon the visit.

We rejoice that His Majesty is gaining strength and it is our earnest prayer that soon he will be fully restored to health.

His Majesty has asked Their Royal Highnesses The Princess Elizabeth, Duchess of Edinburgh, and the Duke of Edinburgh to visit Australia and New Zealand next year. Their coming is eagerly awaited.

Arrangements are being made to ensure that as many as possible, particularly school children and young people, will have the opportunity of joining in demonstrations of loyalty and affection.

My advisers will introduce Bills to complete the programme of legislation announced earlier in the year.

Provision was made last session, by temporary Standing Orders of both Houses of Parliament, to enable Bills which were introduced into Parliament but not finally disposed of to be advanced in the present session without further amendment or debate to the stage which they had reached.

These Bills, together with other important measures, will be submitted to you as early as practicable.

I now leave you to your deliberations and pray that under Divine Providence your labours may advance the welfare of the State.

DALLAS BROOKS,
Governor of Victoria.

Melbourne, 13th November, 1951.

9. STATE ELECTRICITY COMMISSION (APPLIANCES) BILL.—Order read for resuming adjourned debate on question—That this Bill be now read a second time; debate resumed; Bill read a second time and committed; considered in Committee.
Committee reported progress; to sit again this day.
10. POSTPONEMENT OF ORDERS OF THE DAY.—Ordered—That the consideration of Orders of the Day Nos. 2 and 5 to 10 inclusive be postponed until after Nos. 11 and 12.
11. SUPPLY.—The House, according to Order, resolved itself into the Committee of Supply.
Committee reported progress; to sit again this day.

Mr. Mibus (Chairman of Committees) reported that during the debate on Supply the question of funeral benefit associations was raised, and that he had ruled, on a point of order, that the discussion was out of order on the grounds that the matter was sub judice. With the approval of the Committee he sought Mr. Speaker's opinion on his ruling.

And, after debate—

Mr. Speaker said, "I gave my ruling on this subject on a point of order raised earlier to-day. It was based on two rulings which are recorded in Sir T. Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice, both of which had the same effect, except that on page 380 of the fifteenth edition it is indicated that matters under consideration by a court of law should not be brought before the House by a substantive motion or otherwise. May then indicates that the rule does not apply to Bills. I presume the reason for that exclusion of Bills is that it may be necessary for an Act of Parliament to be passed to deal with a specific matter, which could not be done if that rule were strictly enforced. I have always held the view that the ruling in May, based on House of Commons practice, was designed to protect the interests of justice, that when somebody was on trial the issue should not be prejudiced by remarks made in Parliament any more than by comments being published in the newspapers. A line of demarcation must be drawn to allow the fullest possible freedom of speech, while at the same time not interfering with the administration of justice. I was not present during the debate in Committee on this subject and, except in a general way, I am not aware of the form the discussion took. I should be the last person to say that because some particular matter, in a very broad sense, was before a court any reference to it in this Chamber should be barred. I think that would be carrying the rule too far. On another occasion recently a similar problem arose, and, according to press reports, the Chairman of Committees permitted a certain matter to be discussed and I thoroughly agreed with him, although exception was taken by outside interests, on the ground that the matter was sub judice. If discussion on any subject that is even remotely before the courts is to be barred, I think that would be going too far. As far as I can see the Chairman of Committees should be the best judge of whether a subject matter is being discussed in a way that would interfere with the administration of justice. He must ensure, as must the Speaker, that nothing is said that will interfere with the administration of justice. Whether any reference to funeral benefits should be debarred because one section of the Act relating to that question is the subject of a legal action must be considered. I do not know how this subject is being dealt with by the courts, and I cannot see why members should be debarred altogether from referring to it, merely because one section of the Act is being challenged. I think the Chairman of Committees can be entrusted with the regulation of the discussion according to the way in which the subject matter is raised in Committee. I cannot rule that a discussion of the whole subject of funeral benefit associations will be out of order but I do rule that aspects likely to affect the course of justice in any shape or form must not be debated. The Chairman of Committees must decide which matters come within the limits that I have prescribed."

12. SUPPLY.—The House, according to Order, resolved itself into the Committee of Supply.
